Pocahontas residents feel Rota highly honored that they were ably represented on the Old Dominion Barn Dance program by Patricia Simmons on January 1st. Patricia, daughter of Mr. Mrs. Asil L. Simmons of Slatyfork, participated in a program which was broadcast by radio station WRVA at Richmond.

A Journal correspondent said, "Patricia did some fine 'pickin' and singin' and somehow it gave us a thrill as we listened to hear her proudly inform the 'emcee' that she was from Pocahontas County, West Virginia. We are happy to have produced such fine talent in one so young, and wish her much success for the future."

Seneca Forest Lake Made Into Trout Lake

Conversion of the lake in Seneca State Forest into a trout fishing lake is being made by the fish management division of the conservation commission, the latter said today.

The entire former fish population, made up of bass, bluegills and crappies, has been removed, and the lake will be stocked with adult rainbow trout prior to the opening of the 1950 trout season. Removal of the bass. and crappies was accomplished use of a 5 by chemical poison released in the lake by commission technicians. According to the latter, the results showed a very poor fish population present, at least two-thirds of the fish in the lake suckers. Not more than a barrelfull of fish of all kind taken from the 41/2-acre lake.

It was explained that the chief reason for converting the lake into a trout lake was that water is cold throughout This was believed responsible for the poor results with by forest fishermen in recent years. Lying at an elevation of 2,800 feet, the lake is expected by technicians to prove excellent for rainbow trout.

Plans Progressing For Artificial Breeding Unit

The organization directors of the Pocahontas Unit, Artificial Breeding Cooperative, Wilbur Moore, N. W. Shaw, Ward Barlow, E. N. Moore, Jr., John Coyner, W. H. Barlow, and George V. Hannah, met recently in the County Agent's Office.

Officers were elected as follows: Chairman — Wilbur Moore, Hillsboro; Secretary, Walter E. Jett, and Treasurer, W. H. Barlow, Huntersville.

Applicants for position as inseminator were interviewed. Chester McLaughlin and Clyde Varner were selected by the Board to attend the special training course given at West Virginia University, May 16-23.

The membership campaign was discussed by the board. A unit cannot be started until sufficient members have been secured to insure the success of the program. During the survey recently conducted the 217 farmers responding indicated they owned 1,050 cows and would like to breed 950 of them artificially. In order to insure the installation of the unit everyone interested make application membership at the very earliest opportunity. A lifetime membership in the organization costs

The plane was equipped with two sets of controls, and while it could not be definitely ascertained which of the pilots was operating them on the fatal flight, it is believed that the motor was stalled out in an attempt to gain altitude too quickly. When the motor failed, the plane went into a downward spiral, circling one of several former bridge piers standing in the river and crashed. The site of the tragedy is adjacent to a barn-lot owned by E. H. Williams and is but a short IN MY distance from the Fairgrounds entrance.

Cass Citizen Will Observe 97th Birthday Tomorrow

On next Friday, June 17, 1949, interested citizen of a lively. Pocahontas County will celebrate birthday. Mr. his 97th rs Pierce Wooddell of Cass, maintains a remarkable memory of d the past and a keen interest in 1. things of the present. Except for n the time which he has lived in n the home of his granddaughter, Mrs. Earle Ralston, where he now resides, he has spent all of his s life at Greenbank, where he was born in 1852. He remembers well that, as a boy of nine or years, he would hide his father's horses in the woods everytime their was a report of the approach of some of the Northern forces during the strife of '61 to 65. But, he says, they got one of their horses at last. At one time some soldiers of the Union Army came up to him as he stood by his father's stable. An officer said to him, "Get up there and throw down some oats." "But," said Mr. Wooddell with a twinkle in his eye, "You know I was a sassy little 'bougher' and I said to him, 'Throw 'em down yourself." He saw the march of General Arvill with 4,000 men through Greenbank. Mr. Wooddell married Nancy underbrush when the burning tree fell to the ground spreading fire in all directions as burning chunks rolled down hill.

Fire fighters checked the spread of the fire, then worked throughout the following night "mopping up" as they say. The mop up job consisted of chopping fire out of burning stumps and logs, cutting snags near the fire line and widening the initial control line. Water was carried to spray over burning embbers with the back-pack pumps. The fire fighters wore carbide lamps, of the type used by miners, to light their way, and the brilliant light provided by those lamps greatly reduced the danger of working in the woods at night.

The night work of mopping up the fire was well worth the effort since it enabled men to strike the fire during the cool hours when the wind was down and running glames were reduced to creeping and smoldering fire. The results were far greater than they would have been had

The night work of mopping up the fire was well worth the effort since it enabled men to strike the fire during the cool hours when the wind was down and running glames were reduced to creeping and smoldering fire. The results were far greater than they would have been had the crew been dismissed to return during day light hours when the heat of the sun and usual daily winds make forest fires difficult to control.

Another fire which occured earlier this spring was the result of a burning automobile which left the road and plunged into the woods. No one was injured and the fire was quickly controlled by National Forest Warden, James Hull of Alvon.
